HIGH SCHOOL MEMORIES

I thought I'd tell you about some of my high school classes because they might have been a little different from yours. The first I'll mention is Mr. Cooper's biology class. While I didn't care much for dissecting frogs and their smell, I really hated it when Mr. Cooper insisted that in order to pass his course, we had to let a live snake pass through our hands! Ugh! I can still feel the slimy thing! If it enjoyed my hands, I didn't. Nor did it endear me to Mr. Cooper!

Then there was Miss Joslin's speech class. Why I enrolled it I don't know. Maybe I thought it would do me some good - & it did! There was a little platform in front of the class that when called on we had to get on. Being naturally shy, I hated to get on that platform. Once we had to recite a poem we'd memorized, then we had to make up talks sometimes on an assigned topic, sometimes one of our own choice.

At first the length of time for our talks was maybe a minute or two, then as the year progressed so did the time for our talks. I was always glad if I was saved by the bell! But you know, that was the most useful class I ever had because it taught me not to be afraid of an audience. It came in handy later as I became president of various organizations & even here at Sparks Inn where I've given several book reviews & gave talks on the First Ladies of the White House (from a book I'd borrowed) & later some of Paul Harvey's "The Rest of the Story."

I took French for four years with Mademoiselle Naye as teacher. She was a pretty blond from Nice, Franc & smells so-o-o good! I loved the language & made excellent grades. I learned to read books in French, but I've forgotten most of it, unfortunately. But I'm pleased when I run across a word or phrase in some book I'm reading & find I can translate it!

There was Mr. Watson's social studies class. We were all assigned a living senator's name & discussed the issues of the day. Newspapers were our texts. I was Senator Borah from Idaho. As Senator Borah, I think I enjoyed listening to the others as they'd get into hot debates rather than participating.

There were of course other classes more or less routine, but the last I'll mention was journalism. There we learned to write for our school's weekly. I loved to see the articles I'd written put in print, & I covered all kinds of stories from human interest to sports events. But the most fascinating event I was pleased to cover came in my senior year. A friend & I were assigned to go to the little historic town of New Harmony on the Wabash to write a feature article on its environs & history. What a lovely day we had! We learned that it had been founded by a "goat load of knowledge" from Europe, men & women from all professions with a few skilled workers. We were guided happily from one historic building where they had conducted their business to another, always enjoying the shade of the beautiful rain trees that I'd never seen before. Of course we enjoyed the cuisine of one of their favorite restaurants.

Since the initial purpose of the founders was to establish a more or less communistic society in which everyone shared alike in the work as well as the profits, it was doomed for failure. After all, they were only human. I don't know (if I ever know) how long it lasted, but I remember the happy day we spent there. I wonder what it's like today. Maybe some of you can find out!

Thanks for reading my memories. And may God richly bless each of you.

FROM GYANNE

Mother will be 96 on April 18. She is doing fairly well although she is slowing down somewhat. She walks with the help of a 4-footed cane but still gets out to restaurants and plays Skip-Bo whenever she can get up a group. Her hearing is her biggest problem but if anyone would want to call, her number is: 1-770-306-1415

I know she'd love receiving cards and letters from her Indiana kin. Her grand children and great grands call her "MeMe" so we have declared all of April "MeMe Month". We want to shower her with attention all through the month.

Hope you can pass this on to all on your list. Thanks.

FROM JO SCHLOTTMANN

From the Schlottmann house, things are going good. Our yard is looking great, thanks to our new yard man. Manfred is finally able to really work outside and the flowers and grass are looking so good. We are looking forward to a little bit warmer weather where we can keep Jared Mykael outside. At almost three he is ready to run and have a good time. His favorite thing right now is going for a ride in the big truck (our 18-wheeler) when it gets back home, and singing 'Bad Boys' to anyone who will listen.

We are in the fishing pole business. Manfred has been putting together Pack's Poles (a crappie fiberglass fishing pole sold at Wal-marts) for something to do. He has enjoyed staying busy. This man cannot sit, okay unless I ask him to do something. Jared Mykael thinks he does no wrong and follows him everywhere.

Christopher Michael my youngest (we call him Mykll, which is his computer name) is flying high as a computer programmer and really doing great. Has turned out to be a great uncle for little "Mikey". We are all hoping that this is the year he buys a new car. He doesn't want to give up his VW Thing. We are trying to coax him into getting a new car and just using that Thing for fun. His company recently gave him a new laptop and for Christmas he helps Manfred pick me out a new laptop. Mine has a 17 inch screen and his is much smaller, he says it is not fair. Now he is setting me up with wireless since I have a tendency to string my telephone cord across the kitchen. (Drives Manfred crazy).

I am finally trying to learn the end of what I have been doing forever. I have always done camera and video work but always relied on someone else to finish and edit it. I am trying to learn to do a television show from start to finish and really enjoy it so far. Have to back off for a while now though cause it is Tadpole Fishing time again.

Hope that everyone is all right and enjoying these newsletters. Thanks Paul.

Jo

RAY FRANCE FAMILY

Audrey is now a great-grandma. Tammy's daughter Rachel had a daughter this morning 5 lbs 9 oz. She was almost a month early. Tammy flying out tomorrow then she'll call Audrey with details. They're in Washington state - husband is in Navy.

MORE FROM JO

Wow I had just emailed my adopted son from church who is in the Navy right now and then I checked your email and find out we have another one.

Have had my hands full with Jared Mykael being here at my house full time right now. Just better all around for him but a handful for me.

We had the flu and I am trying to get to work for the first time in over a week so I think it is time. Hope that you all are doing alright. We have had snow so our life is complete sure did make me feel homesick for just a little while.

Love to all. Jo

HELLO FAMILY

I can't believe winter is over and the reunion will be here before we know it. I plan on being there, what about you?

I'm going to be in E'ville the end of May to pick up Will so he can spend a few weeks with us.

We are going to have another grandbaby! This will make our 4th. We have 2 boys and a girl, so it would be nice to have another little girl.

My mare had another baby this spring and it was a little girl. She is really pretty and this will be my mare's last baby. She is 19 this year and she deserves a break! This was her 9th baby and last baby.

Our winter was very warm this year and we have the air-conditioner running way too soon. It looks as if summer is going to be a long and warm one.

Hope to see you all in July!

FROM LORETTA HEYEN

Hello Paul: I hope all is well with you and your family. Last year I sent you a notice I was doing research on Joseph Swope's wife, Sarah Francis Barnard Swope. I have found much information through her line that goes back to King Edward III of England among other family names. If anyone subscribing to your news letter is descended from this family and would like to contact me for further information, let them know.
Thanks.

FROM AUDRY & RAY FRANCE

David is back from Kuwait and back to work. Kerry's unit is back in the states. He is at Ft. Knox for demobilization. They drove over a million miles and delivered over 100,000 gallons of fuel while overseas. Kevin is scheduled to come home May 2nd. Kerry says he doesn't care what is fixed to eat when he comes home as long as he has some potato salad.

We had our first great granddaughter, born Feb 21st. Tammy's first grandchild. She weighed 5 lb 9 oz. was named Hannah Annette McStay.

FROM EVELYN EVANS

I'm still quilting this winter. I've quilted several for Audrey after she embroider's the squares and sews them together. Now I am working on one for Janice. We go to an Amish store near Montgomery and purchase cheater tops. I just follow the pattern. It's pretty with a purple back.

I spent three weeks in December in Massachusetts with Jean and family. Both boys were swimming on the high school team. They came home at 5 after practicing 1 1/2 hours and wanted supper - hungry!! So, I could do that.

Last July I had cataract surgery and then in October had an eye operation because the eye lashes on the lower lid was scratching. It was like having a face lift. It's ok now. The end of March I'm having a hammer toe amputated.

In February I went with Janice to Chicago for her cataract surgery. She had lasik surgery several years ago and it seems not many doctors know how to operate for cataracts of lasik. We had a motel across from Rush Hospital with a shuttle service to the hospital and doctor's appointments. The next day after her surgery I had to drive home. I was afraid of the interstate but Janice knew how to go around. She remembered the are from all her trips to Chicago when she was ice skating. Now she goes up for appraisal meetings. No traffic so I didn't mind driving.

Jean Haughey's family (Evelyn Evans' daughter): In February the high school took a bus load of kids to Canada for snow boarding. Michael went. He fell and hurt his left shoulder. The clavicle separated and was very painful for awhile. He wasn't able to compete in the regional swim meet. Andrew did compete and went with the relay team to state. Micahel did try out again this year for baseball but with his shoulder, he couldn't hit the ball hard enough. Jean said he wasn't too disappointed. Now he has time for his bass guitar. He plays in a small local band.
At Christmas Andrew was 1/2" taller than his brother at 5'11 1/2". He's 14. Michael is 17.

FROM TAMMY WHITE

Hi everyone!

I just wanted to let everyone know that Hannah Annette McStay arrived at 12:34 am on Saturday, February 21, 2004. She was 5 pounds, 9 ounces. She was 5 weeks early, but doing ok. She had to stay at the hospital in the NICU for a week after Rachel came home. Amy and I flew out to Seattle (Rachel and Hugh live in Arlington, Washington...about 40 miles north of Seattle) Sunday the 22nd. We were there for almost 2 weeks. It was great to see my first grandchild. Hope everyone is doing well.
Love, Tammy~

Class uses Wright centennial to illustrate wonders of flight.

By Susan Weidener Inquirer Suburban Staff

At 10:35 a.m. on Dec. 17 - the exact moment when, 100 years before, the Wright brothers had been borne aloft and sustained flight along the windswept sands of Kitty Hawk - Merion Elementary School teacher Penny Glackman called for "a moment of thought."

Her third-grade students, wearing red, white and black T-shirts that read From Kitty Hawk to Mars - 1903 to 2003, paused to reflect.

On this day, as the nation watched a reenactment in the wind and rain pummeling the beaches of North Carolina, the children had traveled on a cold and rainy day to the American Helicopter Museum in West Chester.

There, 45 students from two third-grade classes had gone to get a hands-on experience in "piloting" a helicopter. They pulled on levers and pushed foot pedals in the cockpit as a museum guide pushed the tail of the copter up and down to give it movement.

The trip was the culmination of an eight-week course of study at Merion Elementary called "The Wright Stuff," celebrating aviation's past and studying the possibilities for the future.

"It's amazing that so much has happened in 100 years," said Emma Phillips, 9, of Bala Cynwyd.

Chimed in Jessica Solomon, 9, of Merion: "People thought they were dingbatters... they were crazy," she said of how Orville and Wilbur Wright were viewed in their day.

Merion Elementary has been working in conjunction with NASA and affiliates of the U.S.

Department of Education to provide a course of study on the first centennial of flight. Glackman has cultivated a relationship with NASA scientists over the years, and she had her students participate in online chats with NASA scientists and astronauts.

The school also used the U.S. Centennial of Flight Commission's Web site at www.centennialofflight.gov, which provides resources and learning guides to inspire students through the story of the Wright brothers to become the next generation of inventors, aviators, engineers and scientists.

At the Merion school, the children have been reading biographies of the Wright brothers and building models of the Saturn V rocket and space stations; they even flew a replica of the original 1903 Wright Flyer.

"Our model flew for five seconds and went about 13 feet. We considered that this was pretty successful," Glackman said of the plastic and Styrofoam replica powered by batteries and rubber bands. The replica had been purchased at the Franklin Museum.

Studies also have ranged from the exploration of Mars to a field trip to the Kimmel Center. A concert by the Philadelphia Orchestra was meant to inspire musically and create a feeling of flight, Glackman said.

"Students used graphs provided by the U.S. Centennial of Flight Commission for the last 10 years at Kitty Hawk to help forecast what the weather would be like today," Glackman said at the American Helicopter Museum. Merion was one of 460 schools across the nation working on the weather-forecast project.

The helicopter museum, which opened in 1996, is the nation's first museum devoted to rotary-wing aircraft.

Glackman said she would continue the study of space and science next month when spacecraft is expected to land on Mars. The class will be borrowing a lunar sample disk from NASA, with specimens of moon rocks and soil embedded in a Plexiglas disk.

"I hope the children have learned some of the science and the ingenuity behind aviation," Glackman said.

"I also hope they have learned that, ultimately, success takes perseverance, the kind of perseverance shown by the Wright brothers."

EROM RIGGS'S

I know you don't get much from the Riggs family. Floyd is doing well but can't see well. Becky oldest is getting married in Connecticut on the 24th of April Roger will be singing. I have had both knees replaced the middle of February. Rest of family doing o.k.

FROM SARAH SOSBE

Teaching has turned out to be a fantastic experience! I have created wonderful friendships with my students and fellow teachers. Currently, we have just completed third term and my students are gearing up for their city and state exams, and of course for graduation. My 7th graders completed research papers and presentations, which went over quite well. My 8th graders completed editorials and were even honored with a special visit from a Vogue editor, during the principal for a day program. The editor spoke with the kids and talked to them about the journalism industry and creating the magazine.

Besides teaching, I am also completing a masters program at Fordham University. The classes are interesting and I really like the school. I have decided this is probably where I will attend law school. I will continue to take classes this summer while also teaching summer school to make some extra money.

Despite the craziness of teaching and going to school I have been able to have some further adventures here in New York City. I was invited to a City Council function, where I was able to meet Hilary Clinton - a HUGE event for me! I'm becoming a huge jazz connessiour out here, I've been to Birdland (Charlie Parkers club) and seen Winston Marsaleis and Harry Connick Jr - a wonderful show. A good friend from college came out during my winter break (yes we have winter and spring break out here - but we are in school until the end of June) and we explored the city as no tourists could. We went to the Statue of Liberty, saw the taping of a show, hung outside of the MTV studios while Rubben Stoddard performed on TRL, was an audience member during a taping of Tough Crowd, and met Nelly Furtado outside of the David Letterman studios. I can completely understand what they mean when they say the city that never sleeps! Broadway shows are becoming an addiction. My mother, Kathryn Sosbe, came for a weekend and we saw The Lion King, a few weeks later I went to the Producers, and recently I viewed Bombay Dreams. All excellent shows!

Currently, I am on my spring break and am heading to Florida with my mother and Victor. It will be fun to sit in the sun and relax. In May, we head back to Colorado to watch my little sister, Laura, graduate from Colorado State University. We are all very proud her and excited to watch her recieve her diploma.

I hope all is well with everyone and I look forward to reading your news!

(Paul: I just wanted to say thank you so much for doing this for the family. I know it must take a lot of time and work, but it is greatly appreciated!)
Sarah Sosbe

FROM PAUL SWOPE

Well I keep on all of the Swopes to get me something for the news letter so I guess I better put something in about myself.

Have been well, no problems that about 30 less years wouldn't fix. Still trying to date and keep busy, living alone is not what I like.

Keeping up some web sites, of course the Swope site and some others. Been keeping up the McCutchanville Church site, McCutchanville School site, Reitz 1946 site, and two different Coast Guard Auxiliary sites.

Also have been serving on the McCutchanville Church Building Committee. Yes the church now has plans for a new Sanctuary. I hope to have the new plans on the web site soon.

Candy is still doing well, keeps me in line.

That's about it from here.

Paul

FROM MONTANA

Spring is in the air, but snow is still around us. The calves are on the ground and in some places you see a whole lot of black spots or white faces. The hillsides and valleys are full of baby calves. They are adorable. It is one of my favorite times of the year.

The whole family is doing great and growing fast. We are once again planning a Kramer reunion August 20th. Jack and I just returned from going to the PBR (Professional Bull Riding) in Billings Montana. It is something that Jack and I follow faithfully and it was great! We really enjoyed it and hope to return if the opportunity arises.

The camper it out, the cover off, and it will soon be time to take off again. We are planning a trip to Colorado to attend Laura's (Granddaughter of Marjorie Hart) graduation from college. It will be our first long trip with the camper and while excited, we are a bit nervous about it too.

Work goes on and the family continues to grow. Jackie our granddaughter will receive her Masters in May. Justin, our grandson, should be finished with special training (Army) in June. We are hoping that his next station will be here in the states and not overseas again. Our son John, (Airforce reserves) will be going overseas to Bagdad in July. We are unsure of the time he will be there. Our Granddaughter Michelle and her husband Eric are building a new log home in Maine. Tiffany and Meagan (granddaughters) will graduate this spring from High School.

Another granddaughter Petra is learning to barrel race and hopes to talk her parents into a horse! Grandchildren Bradley, Amanda, Jody, Amy and Chad are ready for summer vacation. Erin is attending the University of Montana. Megan likes to play and Jackson enjoys snowshoeing and skiing while Tanner likes to climb anything he can get away with. He is at that 2 stage!..... Shannone and K.C. just returned from Las Vegas over a long weekend. A well deserved time away. As you can see, our family is large and quite busy and we smile.

We hope that your families are well and happy and enjoy reading your news each time.
Mary Kramer

FROM THE EDITOR

2004 Swope Reunion

As shown in the headline, the reunion will be on Saturday this year. A few of us thought we might try a Saturday to see if it would help attendance. SO, mark your calendars, the next Swope reunion will be Saturday 17 July 2004.

We will start assembling at 11am and sit to eat at 12 noon.

As always this will be a carry in dinner. Bring your favorite food to share, and your own table ware. There will be ice tea and lemonade available. If you wish something else to drink you may bring it along.

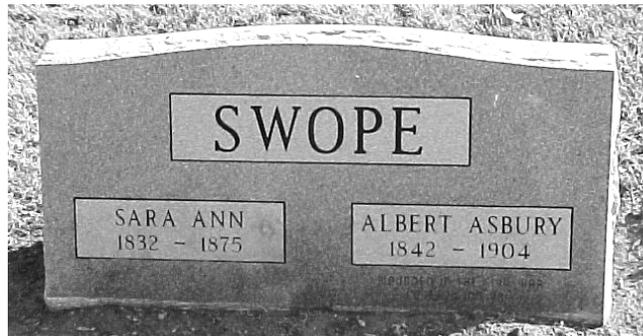

Those that set up the reunion are always open to ideas for a place and day. So far the McCutchanville Church seems to be the most centrally located and the price is right. There were some other places suggested but the biggest problems were cost and the more popular places have to be reserved more than a year ahead of time.

See you all Saturday 17 July!!!

Oakhill Cemetery

As reported last time, the new stones are in place at Oakhill Cemetery to mark our ancestor's graves. We think you will be happy with them when you go and look. Nancy is still trying to get a bronze marker for A. A. Swope for his serving and getting wounded in the Civil war.

It is shown under his name about the Civil war but it is hard to see in this photo.

There are more pictures of the stones on the Swope web site, www.swopes.org.

Mail Address

There is a page with U.S. Mail address included in this News Letter. If there are any changes or additions let me know.

The next news letter will be after the reunion. Publishing date early August.

Cost Accounting

There is also a page included in the News Letter for the cost accounting of the reunions and printing.

Email Address

If you have an email address that is not on the email address list please get it to me. I send out the email list by email and if you do not get the list then I don't have your email address.
